THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The dissi openings of the president in the Saty-acceptly compress toot nothing by delay in deflicery. The president confined humself to few specific many cts, yet in the ones he chose for schools treatment, he evinced a keen perceplives, for they are of the greatest importance from the standpoint of the general public.

As a whole the document is admirable, its one vulnerable point being that it deals in generalities and does not prescribe the form of amelioration in a single instance, leaving that detail to congress. But even so it must be concoded that this spirit is in perfect accord with he traditions of our government he - Everyone, speaking broadly craves residuatinent for everyone except himself, while there can be no just and permanent readjustment except when all participate."

The key to the president's mesings is found to those of his words:

That is not only the key to the president's message, but is likewise the key to the country's most serious distempers and problems.

Speaking honestly, there is one reference the president made which The World could wish he had refrained from. Reference is had to this paragraphs

"There never again will be precisely the same old order; indeed, I know of no one who thinks it desirable. For out of the old order, came the war itself, and the new order, calculated and made secure, never will permit its recurrence."

Such idealistic and unsound utterances fit another administration—one that has passed into history without too much lament-but constitutes a discordant, jarring note in the present administration.

We live in no new world at all. We live in precisely the same old world, controlled by the basic qualities of the same old human nature which is actuated by the self-same problems and ambitions as prevalled before the last war. And war will come again, many, many times. Why should statesmen attempt to fool the peopla and modificed their thoughts even if they are content to fool themselves.

Of course "precisely the same conditions" will not exist again, just as "precisely" the same conditions of yesterday have never existed on the morrow. But the problems which move men to herole action or revolutionary undertakings, remain today in accentuated form just as they existed prior to the beginning of the World war.

What was the pressing problem of govern fines in 1914 and set fire to the structure of civilization? Measurable social and economic ustice for all citizens of the republic of course, The demand from those who worked with their | will of the Irish people, the fact remains that hands for a greater part of the logitimate no government can succeed on peaceful basis foults of industry was then foundationed on the sheer necessity of a just government to grant those demands wisely.

That remains the one pressing problem now, speaking broadly of the problems of the government. Salved, and the social rabric will become tranquilized, patriotic and happy; ignorad, and social unrest will increase, pairlotism will decline until, as in the days of the Blowarts, there will not be sufficient loyalty left. to protect the head of an unjust and treasenable king from the wrath of his subjects.

The World war did indeed bring new problung, but it solved none of the older problems; least of all did it eventuate in anything to justify this constant reiferation that there exists a "new order" which will make wars impossible, War in some of its various forms, is ravaging the world today, yes, it is rampant here in our own republic. For the various group activities which have torn the two deminant parties into class cubals of the most selfish character, constitute war in one of its most menacing forms.

President Harding was unfortunate in permilling himself to use the paragraph we objecto, but in a message of such otherwise general excellence the defect may well be overlooked.

WHAT IS THE SOLUTION?

The World has repeatedly despired that a solution of the arisen transportation in Tuisa. stands only second to the solution of the water problem if indeed it can be considered second to any question goncerning the city's growth. It has said that Tulsa is the poorest served city by its transportation system there is in America. It has said that the failure of the transportation strient to keep pace with the city in other respects has retarded the growth of the communtty immensurably. It has said that the blame for the present condition does not rest airogether on either the transportation system or the city

And all of these declarations The World refierales now. But what is to be done about it? Conditions do no improve, in fact they grow worse. 'The city is involved in a was between the litney drivers and the bus interests. Progress is not made toward a solution that is even mensurably satisfactory. At the time the prosstreets and gave the bus interests full sway, I may cause a lot of trouble in the near east.

The World felt justified in approxing the step-For the simple reason that every thinking man a condition acceptable to both the public and Becourse measured for ween to the citizens who must provide the profits for either piney or box, the littley is for and army about of the boxes as they are operated.

Let The World repeats, this city connot grow and thrive and have pride in a fitney system of ment stands the demonstrated fact that it cannot take pride in nor much longer tolerate the system of prima transportation provided by the vested interest which has long held almost undisputed away over its streets.

The World has wentured the opinion, which it still feeds partial to, that the only solution is merging of all transportation systems under a syndicate substantially financed by Tules intereets, the city to be adequately served by such lines through extensions made scientifically and in reasonable disregard of the foolish views of sertain high-brow districts which have previousty apposed the extension of transportation lines; the completion of such a system to be the signal for abolishing all other forms of compeller

Wa do not believe there is a patron of any of the origin transportation systems, not directly, interested in the jitney, who believes for a moment that the fitney can be made an acceptable and permanent form of transportation. But who are Nght in insisting that they be allowed in only the litneys until some better form of transportation has been provided. The World frankly confesses that it has about lost all faith. in the Tules street rallway interests ever undertaking to establish its superiority through real service to the people

Tulsa, the city that does things, ought to stir itself to setile this urban transportation system. once and for all. Fathere to do so is harmful to the city. A magnificent future is being dimmed by the utterly abourd light going on between interests, neither of which nor both of which combined, should be allowed to stand in the way of real progress.

A FAIR APPEAL.

The appeal of the governor-general of the Irish Free State to Americans, not to give further aid or comfort to the republican pregulars of Ireland, is a fair appeal and ought to command the support of Irishmen in America.

The action in Ireland has moved with sufficient celerity during the past few months to clearly establish the fact that the free state government has the support and approval of an overwhelming majority of the frish people, To an American citizen, schooled in the constitutional practice of patriotically accepting the ment before a mad man burst from his con- will of the majority as the law of the nation, that ought to be enough,

In the light of recent and pending events is it any wonder that Oklohema's judiciary does not occupy a higher standard? The state milita has been called out to keep order when the harbeched built beef sandwich counters are thrown open.

Ordinarily the supreme court is expected to tell inferior judges where to head in, but it seems not to be so in the case of Judge Bolen.

minima would be, "Foois rush in where angels less to trend."

Yes, Mr. Latta, there is much to be said on the other side. Should we be discussing this matter face to face, you would ask, have you may children? Receiving a negative answer you would spread our your hands, cast your cyes heavenward and exclaim: "That ecties it, if you had chilfren of your own it would be different." My reply would be, that nine out of ten persons who operate sleeping rooms, light houses), apartments and hotels, that the landlord or lady who has children are less inclined to take children than those who have no children of their own are more charlaties who have children than those landlords or ladies who have children than those landlords or ladies who have children than those landlords or ladies who have children for their own.

You were speaking from observation when you wrote, "For of such is the Kingdom," Just iere I wish to answer your argument of the hildless couples. There are two general classes. Children couples. There are two general classes. There is one class that does not want any shildren for the reason that the parental instruct is lacking in their mental character. They are generally the butterfiles of the many grades of society. Of all the specimens of the human ruce, the most contemptible is the woman with painted checks that has a dog cledied in her arms. I can't decide which is the most dispicable, the wife of a man of moderate means who is carring a living by the event of his brow. is earning a living by the sweat of his brow or the wife of a man of wealth, who has a cussed dog caddled in her arms. There is another class of childless couples that are such for reasons that are sufficient. But you in your narrowof childrens couples that are such for reasons that are sufficient. But you in your narrows mindedness would disagree with most of them at this time. Suffice to say that I am one of 13 children, one brother has 13 children, an other 14 children, etc., and my wife is one of 14 large family. Just hers I wish to say that I am not a heliever of large families. A family of three or four children properly carved for is preferable to a large family on the average in tome, for the reason that it means insufficient food, clothing and education, unless we want to raise heys for "cannon fodder." Don't class mas a pacifist. It was my unfortunate lot in life to live many, years in hotels, rooming houses or camps.
